MET CORDIAL RECEPTION.

The announcement of the Eagle to the effect that an enlarged, illustrated edition of the paper will appear on the 20th of April, same to be known as an Easter Number, has aroused a keen and general interest most gratifying to the management. Hardly was the ink dry on Thursday's issue, when the announcement was first made, before one enterprising firm stopped a representative of this paper, asking that a full page be reserved for an ad they would prepare for the forthcoming Easter Edition. On top of this came telephone calls to a similar effect, while a proprietor of one of the business concerns on the city's outskirts also called up to inquire the price of space in the special, stating that he did not want to overlook any chances on getting representative display matter in the paper at that time.

Many similar calls have since come, and in each instance it has been a pleasure to the Eagle force to throw as much light as possible on the pretentious plans and intents of the April 20 issue. The direct object of the big edition, briefly stated, is to thoroughly, favorably and comprehensively present to the outside world as many pertinent facts as can be contained in the large number of pages, the numerous assets and material advantages of the little city of Bryan and the county of Brazos, as a whole. This publicity and exploitation going, as it will to every nook and cranny of this trade territory, as well as over this section of Texas generally, will place Bryan to the fore in a manner that cannot fail to be productive of vast beneficial returns to every individual, and in a way the town and county both so rightly deserve to be featured. A great deal can easily be written which will be very advantageous to the general and specific interests of every citizen and business firm without indulging in any exaggeration or misrepresentation whatever. All the natural opportunities and desirable facts concerning this particular portion of Texas cannot well be portrayed in one issue of the paper, even of the proposed forty pages, but enough can be said to place Bryan and her contiguous territory in a really enviable position on the map, the major portion of which will prove so attractive that prospective home-seekers will turn their eyes this way with new interest, and investigate the situation with the very likely result that now citizens will be added to both the town and trade territory.

All the above may be expected with confidence, to say nothing of the direct monetary results the patrons of the paper may confidently depend upon. The industrial interests centered here will be featured, the great educational and church advantages, and the general prosperous and progressive deportment this town and county have naturally assumed, owing to continued growth, activity in such lines as street pavements, a white way, new buildings, bonds for county highways, etc. A feature will be made of pointing the latest facts concerning the proposed reclamation of the rich and fertile lands of the Brazos valley, which are now subject to overflow. It is expected that the committee designated by congress to make a trip from Washington to this county and other counties to look into and report upon the overflow district will have visited this section before the enlarged edition comes out, and a special man will follow the important movements of the committee, interview them and gather the very latest expert data that is obtainable.

But to refer again to the favorable impression created on the general public by the Eagle's announced intention to issue this mammoth edition, it is proper to state here that the reception of the first notice is appreciated in a manner that can scarcely be expressed in words, but work will be done to the end that this impression and consequent promise of a helping hand from all sources, may be well deserved in the final result.

It is scarcely necessary to mention the fact that the proposed edition will call for an expenditure of money, the sum of which will overshadow the direct returns to the Eagle Printing Company. This has been anticipated, and even with the somewhat advanced rates for advertising space that necessarily accompanies an effort of this kind on the part of a newspaper, the Eagle management does not expect to realize value received for its work of the next few weeks, except by indirect returns, which will follow for the paper and patrons alike.

Everything is in readiness for the great revival to begin tomorrow. Each individual's blessings to come from the meeting depends, not on the evangelist, but on the individual.

Dr. A. J. Barton, head of the Anti-Saloon League in Texas, wants to eliminate all but one of the four pro candidates for United States senator. The candidates refuse to be eliminated and do not appreciate the offices of the good doctor in their behalf. The elimination fight is warm, and the final result is awaited with interest by the people of Texas.

The first brush between soldiers of the United States and the soldiers of Villa has taken place. Blood flowed on both sides. A number of Villistas were killed and several Americans wounded. It is greatly to be hoped the capture of Villa may be accomplished speedily to the end that there may not be a long drawn out series of reports like the above or even worse.

The Houston city council has voted to spend $35,000 in beautifying the parks of the city. The ladies of Bryan are looking after our little park themselves and are doing a splendid work, too. Their energy, enterprise and native-born pluck are wonderful and worthy of every encouragement.

Secretary Daniels discusses additions and improvements for our navy like the navy was about all there is to our government. He uses figures and amounts so recklessly and extravagantly as to create the impression that at some time in his life he was a populist.

When we get that eighty-five miles of first-class roads in this community, ownership of an automobile would be a joy devoutly to be wished. The high price of gasoline will be the only thing that can possibly prevent a boom in the automobile business.

Senator E. G. Senter of Dallas has accepted the position of managing editor of the Waco Morning News. Senter is red-headed, a fighter from way back and the fur may be expected to fly.

Senator Culberson has introduced a bill in the senate to amend the anti-pass law permitting newspapers to exchange advertising space for transportation, state or interstate. Bully for Charley.

El Paso and other border citizens believe Villa's career is about wound up. They look for his finish in the near future.

It has not forgotten how to rain, neither is the moisture of the clouds all dried up. The country is safe and great prosperity will be ours for 1916.

The long drought in North and West Texas has been broken and this section is threatened with relief.

With the coming of the rains it will be difficult to tell which will revive the faster, vegetation or the hopes of the people.

EVANGELIST CATES
DELAYED FEW DAYS

Big Revival Will Go Right on as Planned, the Local Pastors Preaching Until the Evangelist Arrives.

A telegram from Evangelist Cates says he is unavoidably detained for a few days. He will arrive next week. The pastors and executive committee met this morning and decided unanimously that our plans would be carried out, and that the pastors will preach from time to time in these services. The services tomorrow will be held in the big tent on the courthouse lawn at 11 o'clock a. m. and at 7:45 p. m. The business men will not be asked to close for the day services next week until Evangelist Cates arrives and due notice will be given them.

In case of rain so that the tent cannot be used, the executive committee has secured the use of the Methodist Church for the services.

Meet us at the big tent tomorrow at 11 o'clock and tomorrow night. Let all the singers in the town be at both services. CHAS. T. TALLY, Chairman Pastors' Association and of Executive Committee.

WILL HAVE GRAND MAY FESTIVAL

To Be Held on Carnegie Library Lawn
May 1—Preparations Are Now Being Made.

A Grand May Festival will be held in Bryan on Monday, May 1, at Carnegie Library. The exercises will take place on the library lawn and will be free of all charges to everybody that cares to attend.

The work of training and planning for these exercises is now well under way, with Miss Willie Rogers, the librarian, taking the lead, and who has for an assistant a young lady of considerable experience and training along such lines, and that it will be a most enjoyable and successful event there can be no question. Miss Rogers has always taken a great delight in preparing programs and entertainments of a most pleasing nature, and she is sparing no pains to make the May Festival the greatest entertainment ever held in this city of a like character. Among other things in the May Festival, there will be characters dressed in the costumes of early May Day festivals. The queen's dance, the wreath dance, may pole dance, milkmaid's garland on May Day, the milkmaid's revel, the milkmaid's pantomime drill, the May pole waltz, the spider web dance and many other unique and interesting little exercises by the children that will amuse and entertain the public. The characters have all been assigned, and when May time rolls around there will be a most interesting time down on Carnegie Library lawn. Watch for further announcements and program later.
